Rich is extremely talented, intuitive, and well-read. His knowledge is both broad and deep, and he takes a very interdisciplinary approach to his work. Rich also has an excellent work ethic, and performs every task to the utmost of his ability. This strength can occasionally be a hindrance, however, as he is sometimes unsure when "enough is enough", and tends to be undisciplined in his time management. But Rich is capable of bringing a enormous amount of insight and instinct to a project or team, and is always an exceptional asset to an organization.

Rich was bright and loved learning. He worked as a member of the Help Desk and was knowledgeable and capable there. He was promoted from this position to online services where he excelled in web development. His capabilities went beyond that position and I believe he has only grown in his continuing work responsibilities.

I worked closely with Rich for a couple years and now he does several freelance projects for me. He's a great self-starter, figuring things out on his own and running with projects. He's a brilliant researcher and thinker.
